

The hardest part was figuring out how to detect the closed brackets “]”. I had to do quite a bit of research in order to succeed. Eventually I got it working after finding out about strchr. From there it was pretty straightforward, just have it return something depending on what special character it detects. That was really the only difficulty I had with it.